The photographic works of Kishin Shinoyama "Picture power"

Venue: Yokohama Museum of Art

Dates: January 4 (Wed.) - February 28 (Tue.), 2017

The Yokohama Museum of Art is proud to present The photographic works of Kishin Shinoyama "Picture power" from Wednesday, January 4 to Tuesday, February 28, 2017.

The photographer Shinoyama Kishin's career spans over five decades. This exhibition, made up of approximately 120 of Shinoyama's photographs, which were selected by the artist from his enormous body of work and printed on large panels, was specifically designed for the museum space.

John Lennon, Yoko Ono 1980

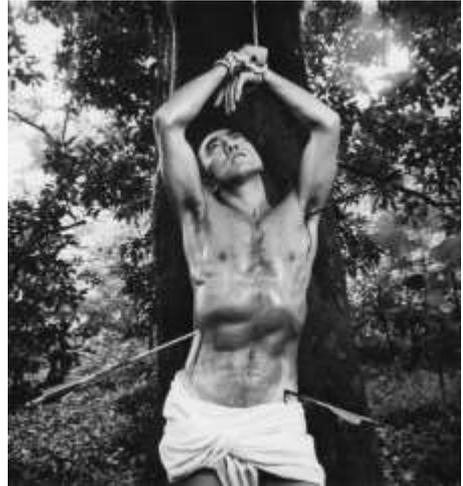

As suggested by Shinoyama's comment that "my theme is people that everybody knows," portraits of famous people lie at the heart of the photographer's practice. The luminous appearance of actors, singers, athletes, writers, artists, musicians, dancers, kabuki performers, and models are conveyed to contemporary viewers through Shinoyama's photographs in magazines, photo books, and other media. It would be no exaggeration to say that because these works have been so widely circulated, they are seen as defining images of the era by viewers of all generations. Rather than pictures that are the size of a handheld book, these photographs, measuring in the meters, promise to evoke vivid memories and transform the exhibition space into a venue for reunions and new encounters.
